

Asist. prof. dr. Andrej Gregori has been engaged in applied mycology for more than twenty years, especially with the cultivation of medicinal mushrooms. Within his company MycoMedica Ltd they produce food supplements from medicinal fungi and develop new cultivation methods. In cooperation with domestic and foreign research institutions and universities they conduct research on extraction and analytical processes of active ingredients and determine their medicinal effects on the body.

